

Where is the MRKT?

New this year- in Brooklyn Square. 3611 14th Avenue. 3rd floor. Literally, right in the heart of Boro Park.

Boro Park? I think I've heard of that place. Where is it?!

You're kidding right? It's an epicenter of life, shopping, and food in the heimishe Jewish sector of Brooklyn. At only 15 minutes from flatbush, 20 short minutes from Crown Heights, and next door to your home in boro park, this year's venue is a no brainer.

What time does the MRKT open?

Depends! If you like to have the place all to yourself—with a small, intimate group of like-minded shoppers—splurge for the $99 package: you'll enjoy NO lines, instant entry, and first dibs on the best items from 10AM - 12PM on Sunday, with booths wide open for your retail pleasure.

If you don't need that perk, the MRKT is open from 12-8PM on Sunday.

On Monday we are open for ALL shopper levels from 10AM - 5PM. The $99+ packages are still available for Monday shoppers but the shopping floors opens for ALL shoppers on Monday as of 10am.

The building has several floors, is the MRKT spread out among a few of them?

This year the MRKT is all on one floor. Our incredible selection of clothing, accessories, and, food vendors are all located on one floor. At nearly 50,000 sq. ft. of show space we will encompass the entire 3rd floor of Brooklyn Square for an optimized layout for vendors and customers alike. There's plenty of space to shop, and we've even added more seating space within the shopping floor to briefly rest your weary legs and give you more energy to continue your splurge :)

Should I pack food with me?

Nope—best to arrive hungry! We have a fabulous lineup of mouthwatering food vendors placed strategically in the MRKT food court,, including: Breadberry Local, Brooklyn Artisan Bakehouse, Juice Theory, Sushi Tokyo, Incredoughble, Mehadrin ice cream
